WAS BAD FOR THE BUDS.

Freezing Weather in All Sections of the Land.

KILLING FROSTS ARE REPORTED.

Fruits and Vegetables Badly Damaged in Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Several Eastern States.

SHIPPED BY JACK FROST.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Reports received from all over the country indicate the coldest weather and heaviest frosts that have been experienced for years thus far in the season. The signal office furnishes the following special bulletin:

"Usually cold weather prevailed Tuesday morning throughout the entire northern portion of the country east of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, the line of freezing temperature extending from southern Maine westward through western New York and northern Ohio, and including the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. In southeastern Michigan the temperature was the lowest on record for this season of the year, the minimum at Detroit being 10 degrees, or 1 degree lower than previously observed during the first decade of May. Severe frosts occurred throughout these regions, probably causing considerable injury to fruit and early vegetation."

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 6.—A heavy frost Monday night did much damage to peaches, plums, currants and small fruits, and reports from Grand Haven, Holland and other points are of an unfavorable nature to fruit prospects. In this city the temperature dropped several degrees below freezing. Ice formed to the thickness of a quarter of an inch. Flower beds around town are ruined, and early vegetables in the rural districts, except in high places, are totally wrecked. The damage to fruit trees is especially severe in the southern part of the county. Alleged country reports from several points in the south, where the buds have blossomed. North of here, where buds are not so far developed, the damage is comparatively slight. Along the lake shore there has been some damage, but how severe has not been fully determined. The frost is the severest in years for so late in the season and will materially affect the crop.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., May 6.—A heavy frost did considerable damage to fruit in this locality Tuesday morning. Ice formed in some places a quarter of an inch thick. Strawberries and grapes have been severely injured, and other fruits were badly nipped. It is thought the peaches are all right.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 6.—There has been severe frosts in the country surrounding Kalamazoo for several nights. Ice has formed on ponds and small streams and many of the buds are badly damaged. It is believed that the peach belt is all right.

EAST TAWAS, Mich., May 6.—Frosts Sunday and Monday night in the adjacent fruit country damaged the trees, which are just blossoming out.

HOLLAND, Mich., May 6.—The cold wave reached here Monday evening, bringing with it a heavy frost that formed ice over one-fourth of an inch thick and destroying again all prospects of peaches, strawberries, and especially injurious plums, apples and pears.

WATERLOO, Ia., May 6.—This section was visited by a severe frost Monday night. Small streams were covered with ice an eighth of an inch in thickness. Much damage is done to fruit trees, which were in full bloom. Small fruits are not much injured, being a little backward.

BELOIT, Wis., May 6.—There was a hard freeze here Monday night, and it is feared that fruit has suffered.

GREEN CASTLE, Ind., May 6.—There was considerable frost in this vicinity Monday night by a fall of temperature, and ice a quarter of an inch thick was formed. The fruit buds, which gave promise of an abundant harvest, were injured, as were also the strawberry and grape blossoms. How seriously the fruit buds were injured is hard to tell, but should another frost follow the fruit crop in this district will be rather dreary.

COVINGTON, Ind., May 6.—There was a heavy frost here Monday night, and it is feared much damage is done to the fruit.

PERU, Ind., May 6.—Reports from all parts of the county show Monday night's frost to have been a killing one, and fear is felt that it will do incalculable damage to growing crops as well.

WARREN, Ill., May 6.—This section was visited Tuesday morning by a heavy frost and ice was formed to the thickness of a window pane. To all appearances fruit and grain have not been injured.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 6.—At noon Tuesday it began snowing and continued up to 11 p. m., the storm at times being almost a blizzard. Ice formed in places a quarter of an inch thick.

New York, May 6.—Snow fell Tuesday morning at Albany and Auburn. There was freezing weather at Medina, and it is thought the fruit crop is much damaged. Snow also fell at North Troy and Richford. The mercury was 3 below freezing at Shrewsbury. Monday night's frost is feared to have badly damaged the cherry crop in Litchfield county, Conn.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 6.—The temperature at many points in central New York fell to freezing point Monday night. In Seneca county some classes of fruits are ruined. There was a heavy frost in Madison county at several places, and fruit and vegetables were ruined.

TIFFIN, O., May 6.—A heavy frost prevailed throughout northern Ohio Tuesday night, ice forming to the thickness of a quarter of an inch. Grapes were badly damaged and early potatoes and other tender vegetables ruined, but it is thought the fruit was not badly hurt.

MILWAUKEE CARPENTERS.

They Have Decided to Quit Work—Building Operations Paralyzed.

MILWAUKEE, May 6.—In a meeting held Tuesday night by the carpenters of this city it was decided to order a general strike. Eighteen hundred union men will leave the buildings now in course of construction in this city by 8 o'clock this morning. As there are only about 200 non-union carpenters in this city and no union man of any of the other building trades will work with non-union men, building is to be stopped at present. The most conservative on both sides of the situation are agreed on one point, i. e., that building enterprises for the present year in Milwaukee are stagnated and but little real work will be done where an unusually large amount was planned and arranged for during the winter and early spring.

HARRISON IN OREGON.

Greetings Extended the President Along His Route.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 6.—The early part of the journey of the president and party into Oregon Tuesday was made in a steady fall of rain, varying from a drizzle to a light storm. This discouraging state of affairs did not seem to dampen the enthusiasm of the inhabitants, and they paid the chief magistrate every honor at each place visited. Salem was reached at 10 o'clock a. m. Curiosity was felt as to the course of Gov. Penneyer, whose remarks have been the subject of newspaper and political comment. Rain was falling and the troops were in line, but the governor was not present. The explanation was made that the carriage failed to call for him, and had been sent to his residence. Just as the train arrived the governor and mayor drove up five minutes late, and were presented to the president in his car. The governor said: "Mr. President, I am glad to meet you and welcome you to the state of Oregon." and added: "I am sorry to have delayed you but it was not my fault." After the presentation of the governor and the mayor to the ladies and to the other members of the party the procession moved to the capitol.

The president spoke briefly at Harrison Institute and Indian school, where he was greeted by music by an Indian band and the pupils drawn up beside the station.

Two pupils presented him with bouquets.

The presidential train arrived here at noon. Despite the falling rain the party received a more impressive reception than at any point save San Francisco during the entire trip.

The route of the procession was very lengthy, giving the population an opportunity to see the president. Probably 40,000 people stood in the rain to pay their respects to the chief magistrate in passing. The president reviewed the procession from the White House. In the evening a public reception was given at the pavilion. Mrs. Harrison holding a ladies' reception at the hotel. The train left at 1 o'clock for Tacoma and Seattle.

The following is the programme so far as decided upon for the return trip of President Harrison: After stopping at Tacoma and Seattle he will go to Salt Lake City, stopping one day at Boise City, Idaho, then to Leadville, Colorado Springs, Denver, Lincoln, Omaha, Neb.; Hannibal, Mo.; Springfield, Ill.; Decatur, Ill.; Indianapolis, Columbus, O., and Pittsburgh.

This conference from a small beginning has grown in influence and the number of its delegates until now it is one of the most important of the national gatherings of our land. Its object is to collect, compare and disseminate information respecting every description of charitable and reformatory enterprise, public or private. An urgent invitation is extended to the governors of all states and territories to appoint delegates by whom they may be represented at this convention. The daily sessions of the conference will be held in Plymouth church and will be of a musical and literary character. Numerous interesting papers will be read and addresses will be made by Gov. Hovey, of Indiana; Gov. Campbell, of Ohio; Mayor Sullivan, of Indianapolis; President McCullough, James Whitcomb Riley and others.

A Report That the Minister Will Quit the Legation in Rome.

LONDON, May 6.—The Rome correspondent of the Chronicle says that it is reported that Minister Porter will shortly vacate the United States legation there, leaving the secretary in charge.

BOYD CANNOT SERVE.

Nebraska's Supreme Court Decides against Gov. Boyd.

HE IS INELIGIBLE FOR OFFICE.

Not Having Been Made a Citizen of the United States—Gov. Thayer Replaced as the State's Chief Executive.

BOYD TURNED OUT.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 6.—The supreme court of the state on Tuesday rendered a decision in the Boyd-Thayer quo-warranto case, ousting Gov. Boyd and declaring Thayer the legal governor of Nebraska. The opinion recites the fact that Boyd was legally elected governor of the state, but is disqualified on the ground of non-citizenship. The opinion was signed by Chief Justice Cobb and Justice Norval. Judge Maxwell filed a dissenting opinion, taking the ground that Boyd was made a citizen by the enabling act, being a citizen of the territory at the time of the admission of the territory into the union.

The opinion closes in these words: "Under judgment of the court Thayer will remain governor, but Boyd can appeal, to the supreme court of the United States, and that his appeal will act as a supersedeas. In this way Boyd can insure his seat until the supreme court of the United States passes on the question of citizenship."

The court also decides against the claim of Lieut. Gov. Majors of the right to act as governor in the event of Boyd's being ousted.

As soon as possible the writ of quo-warranto was prepared. Gov. Thayer filed the bond required with C. W. Mosher, R. C. O'Connell and H. T. O'Connell as sureties, and took the oath of office.

Before Chief Justice Cobb, the writ was then placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Hoxie, and that officer, with Gov. Thayer and his attorneys and friends, proceeded to the executive office, where the writ was served upon Gov. Boyd. The governor was not expecting such a summary proceeding and was greatly surprised. As soon as he had read the writ he said:

"Gentlemen, I recognize the supremacy of the law and am glad to turn the power over to my successor, but I would like the opportunity to consult with my attorneys. They are at the hotel and I have sent for them."

Gov. Thayer's attorney, Judge Mason, Judge Blair and Gen. Webster said that so far as they were concerned they were perfectly willing, but the execution of the writ lay with the officer. Sheriff Hoxie said that there was but one thing for him to do, and that was to obey the order of the court, serve the writ and put Gov. Thayer in possession of the office, which he proceeded to do. John D. Howe, one of Gov. Boyd's attorneys, applied to the supreme court for a stay of proceedings pending the preparation of the transcript and the bill of exceptions, but this was denied, and Gov. Thayer took formal possession of the office. Adjutant General Virginia tendered his resignation and ex-Adjutant General Cole was reappointed. Gov. Thayer has appointed his son, John W. Thayer, Jr., as private secretary and J. E. Ferris executive clerk.

The decision on the whole may be said to be a surprise, the opinion being that in the event of the ousting of Boyd Lieut. Gov. Majors would succeed as the successor.

HEAVY LOSS AT PITTSBURGH.

The Arbuckle Building, the Female College and Christ Church Go Up in Flames.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 6.—About 11 o'clock Tuesday night fire was discovered in the lower floor of the great Arbuckle building on Seventh street, near Duquesne. It is occupied by the Grocers' Supply and Storage Company, and the fire destroyed, in a few minutes, a large portion of the building, reaching a height of one hundred feet, was soon a mass of flame from roof to cellar. The heat was so intense the firemen found it impossible to reach the building with water, and in a short time the adjoining buildings were in a blaze and the entire square was menaced. A high wind blowing at the time swept the fire across to the Pittsburgh Female college building. The interior was completely destroyed. Christ M. E. church on Pennsylvania avenue was also burned. The losses are near as can be estimated amount to about $640,000, and are as follows:

Arbuckle building, occupied by grocers' supplies and storage, $750,000; insured, Joseph Vogel & Co., storage company, low on stock, $200,000; covered by insurance. Other contents and goods in storage building, $200,000; Pittsburgh, Egg Company, $100,000; insured, Bellin & Co., produce dealers, $25,000; Hoeveler & Co., pork packers, $150,000; covered by insurance. LOST ON LAKE SUPERIOR.

The Schooner Atlanta Founders Off Whitefish Point and Three of Her Crew Perish.

SAGINAW, Mich., May 6.—The schooner Atlanta, owned by C. E. Eastman and W. W. Steele, of Saginaw, and Charles E. Jennison, of Bay City, founded about 20 miles north of Whitefish Point on Lake Superior Monday evening. After the schooner foundered the crew of five took to the yawl boat, which the heavy breakers shattered, and all of them, with two exceptions, were drowned. The Whitefish Point life-saving crew put forth every effort and worked heroically, but the heavy seas running prevented them from saving the men.

SHOT A FRIEND IN PLAY.

Mark Terrill Fined $100 For Killing Henry Wesley

HE IS NOW A RUINED MAN.

Health and Fortune Dissipated by The Tragedy That Followed a Drunken Carousal—A Pistol Ball Aimed at a Stove Ends in a Death Scene.

Mark E. Terrill, charged with murdering Henry Wesley at Mineral Point in 1928, pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter in the fourth degree, in Judge Bennett's court today, and was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and costs, amounting to about five hundred dollars in all. Terrill was a wealthy hotel keeper at the time of the tragedy, but has lost almost everything by the litigation, besides serving seven months of a seven-year sentence in the state prison at Waupun. Terrill was born and raised in Mineral Point. At the time of the homicide he was the proprietor and keeper of a hotel at that place, with a bar-room in the basement. When he was a young man he was in the habit of drinking to excess. Then he quit, and for seventeen years refrained from drinking any kind of liquor. About 1928, he commenced drinking again, and continued for a few days. After that he drank occasionally, but at long intervals. A few days previous to the killing he had set up for several nights with a sick son, the drunkard's son, which was a great strain on his health, and in the evening he drank heavily at a saloon. About 11 o'clock in the evening of that day he returned to his own hotel, accompanied by some other persons. Soon after, in his bar-room, he invited Wesley and two or three others present to drink, and they all, in a friendly way, including Terrill, drank two or three times together. Wesley took a revolver from his pocket and flaunted it.

"Terrill," said he, "you are a good fellow. If any one ever touches you I will shoot him."

"Put up your revolver," said Terrill. "No one is going to hurt me."

Wesley did so, and Terrill, apparently pleased at his demonstrative friendship, offered him some money, which he first hesitated to take, but finally consented to take one dollar. As Terrill was in the act of handing Wesley the dollar, he drew it back, saying, "Fellow! a dollar isn't anything," and then handed him a five-dollar bill. Terrill then treated them all, and Wesley insisted upon paying for the drinks, and handed the five-dollar bill to Terrill for that purpose. Terrill took the money, and then went up the steps on the west side of the bar-room into the dining-room, apparently for the purpose of getting the bill changed, but soon returned by the same steps to the bar-room with a 44-caliber British bull-dog self-cocking revolver in his hand, and, holding the revolver up, he walked towards the bar, near the east end of which Wesley stood, on the south side of the room. Wesley exclaimed:

"Don't shoot, Mark! Put that up." After a short or two, Terrill, without saying a word, walked or retreated back towards the north side of the room, and near the large stove, standing near the center of the room, and on the north side of it, and probably a few steps west of it. From that place, or in that vicinity, Terrill fired, at least three times, possibly four, as it was found that four of the chambers of the revolver were empty, although the witnesses agree that there were only three shots. After the first shot Wesley moved from the east corner of the bar, on the south side of the room, towards the north side of the room, and when the second and third shots were fired, he was directly east of Terrill, and about five or six feet from him, and a little north and east of the stove, in the act of moving or dodging. The testimony of bystanders did not indicate very clearly the positions of the several persons in the room during the time. All seem to agree that the last shot fired was the one that killed Wesley, the penetrating his head at an angle of the right eye. It was the opinion of doctors that it was a glancing shot, as a direct shot would either have passed clear through the head, or nearly so. Terrill did not speak a word after coming down stairs with the revolver until after the shooting, and then went up to Wesley and said: "My God! I have shot him."

Terrill and Wesley had always been good friends, and there was not an angry word spoken by either of them, nor by any one by any one that night. One shot lodged in the bird cage at the extreme south end of the room, and above the bar, one grazed the ceiling a few feet south-east of the stove; another grazed the girder extending from a post standing near the southeast corner of the stove, towards the bar; and one passed through the upper part of the window on the east side of the room. Some of the shots grazed the stove. The direction of the first shot is somewhat uncertain, but it seems to be conceded that it was not in the direction of the deceased. It is undisputed that at the time of the firing the second and third shots Terrill stood on the north side of the stove, and a little to the west of it, and facing the stove, and fired in the direction of the stove.

Terrill was arrested charged with murder and pleaded not guilty, and also put in a special plea claiming that at the time of the shooting he was temporarily insane. He also claimed that an injury to his head in childhood contributed to the insanity.

After a long trial Terrill was convicted of murder in the third degree, and sentenced to seven years at Waupun.

He served seven months of that time, pending an appeal to the supreme court, and after listening to the case the supreme court reversed the judgment and remanded the case back for a new trial. Then the case came to Rock County on a change of venue.

Terrill walked out of the circuit court room this morning, a free man, but broken in fortune as the result of the trouble.

Mark E. Terrill, charged with murdering Henry Wesley at Mineral Point in 1928, pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter in the fourth degree, in Judge Bennett's court today, and was sentenced to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and costs, amounting to about five hundred dollars in all. Terrill was a wealthy hotel keeper at the time of the tragedy, but has lost almost everything by the litigation, besides serving seven months of a seven-year sentence in the state prison at Waupun. Terrill was born and raised in Mineral Point. At the time of the homicide he was the proprietor and keeper of a hotel at that place, with a bar-room in the basement. When he was a young man he was in the habit of drinking to excess. Then he quit, and for seventeen years refrained from drinking any kind of liquor. About 1928, he commenced drinking again, and continued for a few days. After that he drank occasionally, but at long intervals. A few days previous to the killing he had set up for several nights with a sick son, the drunkard's son, which was a great strain on his health, and in the evening he drank heavily at a saloon. About 11 o'clock in the evening of that day he returned to his own hotel, accompanied by some other persons. Soon after, in his bar-room, he invited Wesley and two or three others present to drink, and they all, in a friendly way, including Terrill, drank two or three times together. Wesley took a revolver from his pocket and flaunted it.

"Terrill," said he, "you are a good fellow. If any one ever touches you I will shoot him."

"Put up your revolver," said Terrill. "No one is going to hurt me."

Wesley did so, and Terrill, apparently pleased at his demonstrative friendship, offered him some money, which he first hesitated to take, but finally consented to take one dollar. As Terrill was in the act of handing Wesley the dollar, he drew it back, saying, "Fellow! a dollar isn't anything," and then handed him a five-dollar bill. Terrill then treated them all, and Wesley insisted upon paying for the drinks, and handed the five-dollar bill to Terrill for that purpose. Terrill took the money, and then went up the steps on the west side of the bar-room into the dining-room, apparently for the purpose of getting the bill changed, but soon returned by the same steps to the bar-room with a 44-caliber British bull-dog self-cocking revolver in his hand, and, holding the revolver up, he walked towards the bar, near the east end of which Wesley stood, on the south side of the room. Wesley exclaimed:

"Don't shoot, Mark! Put that up." After a short or two, Terrill, without saying a word, walked or retreated back towards the north side of the room, and near the large stove, standing near the center of the room, and on the north side of it, and probably a few steps west of it. From that place, or in that vicinity, Terrill fired, at least three times, possibly four, as it was found that four of the chambers of the revolver were empty, although the witnesses agree that there were only three shots. After the first shot Wesley moved from the east corner of the bar, on the south side of the room, towards the north side of the room, and when the second and third shots were fired, he was directly east of Terrill, and about five or six feet from him, and a little north and east of the stove, in the act of moving or dodging. The testimony of bystanders did not indicate very clearly the positions of the several persons in the room during the time. All seem to agree that the last shot fired was the one that killed Wesley, the penetrating his head at an angle of the right eye. It was the opinion of doctors that it was a glancing shot, as a direct shot would either have passed clear through the head, or nearly so. Terrill did not speak a word after coming down stairs with the revolver until after the shooting, and then went up to Wesley and said: "My God! I have shot him."

Terrill and Wesley had always been good friends, and there was not an angry word spoken by either of them, nor by any one by any one that night. One shot lodged in the bird cage at the extreme south end of the room, and above the bar, one grazed the ceiling a few feet south-east of the stove; another grazed the girder extending from a post standing near the southeast corner of the stove, towards the bar; and one passed through the upper part of the window on the east side of the room. Some of the shots grazed the stove. The direction of the first shot is somewhat uncertain, but it seems to be conceded that it was not in the direction of the deceased. It is undisputed that at the time of the firing the second and third shots Terrill stood on the north side of the stove, and a little to the west of it, and facing the stove, and fired in the direction of the stove.

Terrill was arrested charged with murder and pleaded not guilty, and also put in a special plea claiming that at the time of the shooting he was temporarily insane. He also claimed that an injury to his head in childhood contributed to the insanity.

After a long trial Terrill was convicted of murder in the third degree, and sentenced to seven years at Waupun.

He served seven months of that time, pending an appeal to the supreme court, and after listening to the case the supreme court reversed the judgment and remanded the case back for a new trial. Then the case came to Rock County on a change of venue.

Terrill walked out of the circuit court room this morning, a free man, but broken in fortune as the result of the trouble.

BIG LAKE ON THE STAGE.

Novel Arrangement for the "Dark Secret" Great Tank Scene.

"Gee whiz! I could go in swimming there," said a small boy as he watched the workmen fill the big tank to be used in the presentation of the "Dark Secret" at the Myers to-night. The water did look inviting. Clear as crystal and with a depth of three feet all over the stage except in the center where the opening under the stage allowed a depth of eight feet. All day yesterday workmen measured with a tape line, made marks on the floor with chalk, and this morning finished their work. Then the water was turned on and big streams of "artesian" gushed into the tank. When it was full steam was turned on to warm the water so that the horses and barn would not be converted into animated icicles when they jumped in.

The tank is built in an ingenious manner. The tank proper is made of a heavy rubber tarpaulin which when unrolled nearly covered the stage. The edges were raised up three feet and fastened to the wooden sides and the water turned on. The novel lake does not leak a drop and is quite a novelty as well as a triumph of stage carpentering.

SEWERS NOT YET IN VIEW.

No Alarm Need Be Felt Over Piling Up Bills.

There need be no fear that the sewerage bills will be sent in before appropriations can be made. The question of constructing city sewers will hardly be presented to the people before Engineer Loweth submits his plans to the common council for approval. He will require a few days to make a detailed survey of the city, and ascertain the grades and levels; then he will require a few days more to put his field notes and memorandum in form. He will then be nearly ready to begin drawing his plans and profiles, which will require at least a few days more. After all this is accomplished, he will require an hour or two to draw up the specifications, and perhaps he will want a breathing spell to draw up the blanks for contracts and bids. Taken all together, it may be near the next holiday season the council will have an opportunity to consider the plans. Then the council may require some alterations, which will require a little time. After all, there is not much danger that our streets will be molested by sewer children before another season, if then, it

BELOIT IS VERY DRY

Thirty Ones Must Go to Clinton or Janesville.

No license went into effect when Beloit saloons closed at 11:30 o'clock Monday night, and for the first time in a quarter of a century there is no licensed saloon, or any other for that matter, in Beloit.

E. H. Heinemann's Record of Last Month's Weather.

April 27 was the warmest day in the month, and on this day the thermometer registered 78 degrees above zero. April 4 was the coldest day in the month—27 degrees above. During the month 1,831 inches of snow fell. One-tenth of an inch fell on five different days.

The month averaged 2 1/2 degrees warmer than usual, with an average amount of rainfall. There were an average of thirteen cloudless days, eight partly cloudy, and nine cloudy and rain or snow fell on seven days. The prevailing winds were from the northeast. The fruit and crop outlook is excellent.

IN THE LAST SLEEP.

Mrs. Thomas Goldsborough laid beside her husband.

Many friends follow the remains of Mrs. Mary Goldsborough to Mount Olivet cemetery, and many more attended the funeral services at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Many were present at the church who belonged to other congregations, but were life friends of the dead woman. Rev. Father McGinnity spoke tender words of sympathy, and voiced a tribute to the memory of the dead. The pall bearers were those who officiated in the same capacity at the funeral of the husband on July 23, last, they being Messrs. Benjamin Nelson, D. A. Quinn, P. H. Murphy, Thomas Birmingham, Frank Brown, James Cassner.

BELOIT TRACKS TOO CROOKED.

Ringling Brothers' Circus Train Brought to Janesville to Switch.

Twenty yellow cars bearing in flaming red letters the inscription "Ringling Brothers' Greatest World's Show," rolled into Janesville at 3:25 this morning, and at 4 o'clock pulled out for Beloit. At 9 o'clock the same string of yellow cars came up from Beloit on the Northwestern road, were transferred to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and went back again. All this roundabout work had to be done because the side tracks that connect the two roads at Beloit was too crooked to allow the forty-foot circus cars to get around. The train consisted of twenty-one flat cars, seven horse and animal cars and two coaches for the performers. The show exhibits at Brodhead tomorrow.
